What makes an invention patentable? There are three major requirements for patentability: The invention must be novel, useful and not obvious.* "Novel" means the invention was never described in a patent, published patent application or other publication, and never in public use or on sale, by others before you filed your application. Important note: all of these also apply to your own actions ...

A truism is a claim that is so obvious or self-evident as to be hardly worth mentioning, except as a reminder or as a rhetorical or literary device, and is the opposite of falsism.. In philosophy, a sentence which asserts incomplete truth conditions for a proposition may be regarded as a truism. [citation needed] An example of such a sentence would be "Under appropriate conditions, the sun rises."

IMPORTANT ADVICE: Never turn off any* digital equipment. It usually takes around 2 days of playing for it to "break in" and sound optimum. Once turned off, you have to go through the entire cycle all over again. Accordingly, do not judge digital equipment unless it has been on and operating for at least 48 hours. This is true for even "budget" players.
